Thames Society of Paranormal Investigations
 Shamus Denniston

Shamus is a Public Safety Officer at Conn College and keeps people safe on campus as well as with that other world. TSPI was founded in 2010 and started to conduct "objective" investigations. Everything is taken seriously and information is kept confidential by the nine team members involved. When they receive a call two investigators are sent out to meet with the people to see if the situation is on the level. If justified, site work is done with electronics equipment and personal evaluation.

About 25% of the club raised their hand when asked if they believe in ghosts or that a family member has communicated with them, a little lower than the national average. The cases discussed are those that the owners approved the release of the information.

Anna Warner Bailey House in Groton was the one investigated site. She was a Revolutionary War Hero. The process of the investigation was defined and the results and audio playback were played. When asked questions the ghost responded with answers. Audio playback of the responses are on their website. For this and other stories go to <http://www.tspiparanormal.com>
